SELECT JURY FOR DAMAGE SUIT CASE

Talbot Denies Negligence on His Part Caused Auto Collision.

Selection of the jury before which the suit of George Webster against Ralph Talbot, in which judgment for $1,400 is asked for personal injury and the wrecking of a Ford car, began in district court No. 3 yesterday, and the case will begin this morning.

Webster claims he was injured and his Ford car wrecked at eighteenth street and Madison avenue November 20, 1918, in a collision with a car operated by Talbot. The latter claims that he was driving slowly when Webster, operating a Ford in which were five passengers, ran into and against the defendant's car. He denies every claim of Webster and states in his answer that the collision was caused by the actions of Webster in overhauling the Ford car and being unable to control the vehicle.

Starr Phonograph, Style II

Announcement

To everyone who owns a phonograph and to everyone who hopes to own a phonograph, we announce that we are now distributors of the "singing throat" STARR PHONOGRAPHS, and also Gennett Records.

STARR Phonographs and Gennett Records are made by the world-famous manufacturers of musical instruments, the Starr Piano Company, whose prestige has been spreading for the past fifty years.

The particular feature of the STARR Phonograph is its "singing throat"—a throat made wholly of wood, thereby eliminating all metallic resonances; and the wood used in this throat, moreover, is Silver Grain Spruce—the same wood that was used by the master violin makers of two centuries ago to make the price-less Stradivarius violins.

Seasoned for the Starr until its every fibre is "ready for the test," Silver Grain Spruce is shaped with exquisite care for the important work it is to do—its service as the channel through which the voice of the record is carried to your ears. And when the record is played—then you perceive the difference between the ordinary phonograph throat and this true "singing throat" of the Starr!

Many styles—finished in Oak, Walnut, or Mahogany.

Gennett Records are fashioned with a care as lavished upon a jewel—each one cut exquisitely. Gennett studios are in New York where each new musical "hit," born on Broadway, is translated by stars of the musical world into the glorious language of the Gennett Records.

New dance selections, new orchestral selections, new vocal triumphs—all are constantly being added to the great treasure-chest of Gennett repertory.

We are justly proud of having obtained the representation of STARR Phonographs and Gennett Records. We cordially invite you to visit our salesrooms at your earliest opportunity, and to listen to the new Gennett Records and the "singing throat" of the STARR Phonograph. Until you actually hear them, no description can make you realize the beauty of their tones. Come—today!
